HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP) — President Nixon and Prime Minister Edward Heath have ended man-to-man talks that ended the old style U.S.-British partnership.

But they pledged in a joint statement Tuesday that the two nations will continue working together in defense of shared interests around the world. They also indicated Japan would be a major partner in future planning.

The Monday and Tuesday talks were an occasion for straight talking in top secret by heads of government who think that for their two countries the time has come for some parting of the ways.

"It is even more vital," the President told Heath in an after-dinner toast aboard the British missile destroyer 'Glamorgan' on Monday night, "that we work together... whatever our journeys may be, together or separately."

In keynoting the mood of the occasion, Heath said: "A healthy relationship can withstand change."

The joint statement Nixon and Heath issued Tuesday said: "They agreed that the period which lies ahead is likely to be one of rapid change which will offer the free world both opportunity and challenge on an unprecedented scale."

"This will call for the maintenance of the closest possible degree of understanding and unity of purpose not only between their two countries but also between themselves and their allies and partners."

After a tree planting ceremony symbolizing British-American friendship, Nixon told the assembled crowd of officials and newsmen:

"On the great issues we see the problems of the world in exactly the same way. As Britain goes into Europe, there will be a new Europe. The United States is at present embarking on creating what is really a new America. And we do live in a time when, because of the vast changing events of the world, we live in a new world."

He emphasized the need for "the new Europe and new America" to work together with the countries of Asia, and particularly with Japan.

Heath made the same point: "The future of the Western world depends upon Europe and the United States and Japan not being in confrontation, but working together in harmony, because the interests which we have in common are of vital importance to us and so much greater than any differences which may, from time to time, in various ways divide us."

On the return flight to Washington, Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's top foreign-affairs adviser, told newsmen aboard the presidential plane "It was a good meeting. It was one of the most high-level reviews by the heads of government I've ever attended."

He added that Heath and Nixon have great respect for each other.

In their declaration, Nixon and Heath said: See SUMMIT, Page 2

6 Arrested For $1 Million Bank Robbery In Ontario

TORONTO (AP) — Six persons were under arrest Tuesday in a $1,129,000 bank robbery in Windsor, Ont., but police said nearly $950,000 of the money was still missing.

They recovered a trunk bulging with banknotes in a raid on a motel room on Toronto's western outskirts Monday when two men and a woman were arrested. But the count of the contents, mainly small bills, totalled about $140,000.

Another $11,000 was seized in a raid on an apartment in suburban Mississauga, where two women were arrested, and Staff Supt. Adolphus Payne said Tuesday an additional $30,000 had been recovered but declined to say how or where.

Another man was held for questioning in Windsor.

Charged with possession of stolen property were William Ferguson, 48, of no fixed address and George Ivan Davidson, 43, and Edna Simpson, 58, both of Toronto, arrested at the motel. Jessie Delorme, 45, of Toronto and Edna Lefebvre, 45, of Mississauga were detained at the apartment.

Ferguson and Davidson also were charged with possession of a firearm after a .25-caliber revolver was found at the motel.

Windsor Police Chief Gordon Preston said Tuesday two more men were being sought in the Toronto area and one in Windsor.

The robbers entered the Windsor branch of the Royal Bank of Canada dressed as janitors, and locked 12 employees in a washroom. Then they stuffed three canvas bags full of money.

Kenneth Moore, 54, the bank's manager, made an unexpected visit to his office while the robbery was in progress, and was handcuffed to the cashier's cage. No one was injured.

A WORLD-WIDE PROBLEM

A barge is concealed under a thick blanket of pollution in the form of foamy suds as it steers through a canal lock off the Lys River in Lille, France. Local authorities have become increasingly concerned about this kind of industrial pollution which is caused by factories that discharge chemical wastes into the river.

Federal Air Pollution Standards Imposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government, administering a big dose of "preventive medicine" against air pollution, imposed emission standards Tuesday on new and modified plants in five industrial categories.

Standards were applied to new or modified steam generating plants that burn fossil fuels; large solid-waste incinerators; Portland cement plants; nitric acid plants; and sulfuric acid plants.

Existing plants in these and other categories are not covered by the standards but will be subject to antipollution controls under implementation plans now in preparation by the states to meet national air-quality standards.

Federal controls over new plants and plant modifications are required under the Clean Air Act of 1970.

Announcing the first set of standards Tuesday, Environmental Protection Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus said such standards will be set for some 35 to 40 major industries over the next few years. He called the new-plant standards "the kind of preventive medicine that we have not been applying in the past and that is so necessary if we are to have clean air in this country."

PSU Scientist Says Pollution Always With Us

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — A Penn State University scientist says pollution to some extent will always be with society and that man must decide what kind of pollution he can best live with.

"Getting rid of pollution in one respect often creates other undesirable effects," says Dr. Donald J. Epp, an agricultural economist.

Epp said this "trade-off" between alternatives may exist in four aspects—between environmental quality and other community needs; between geographical areas; within various parts of the environment; and in degrees of environmental cleanliness.

Bypass Objections Said To Have Little Effect On Starting Date

The suggestion of the Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife most likely to substantially delay the start of construction of Phase I of the Warren by-pass apparently is illegal, according to Karl Pierson of the by-pass committee of the Warren County Chamber of Commerce.

It appears that the other two suggestions listed by the Dept. of Interior bureau in their letter to the Corps of Engineers will have little effect on a starting date for construction, Pierson said.

In the letter dated Nov. 19, the bureau suggested that to gain their approval for encroachment in the Allegheny River a boat launch site should be included in the design within a two-mile stretch of the river above the encroachment.

Pierson said that available legal interpretations of Act 88 are that the Dept. of Transportation may not use lands obtained through eminent domain for non-transportation purposes. Pierson said that further legal advice is being sought.

Pierson said that he has been in telephone contact with Nick Milonas of the Corps of Engineers in Pittsburgh since receipt of a copy of the bureau's letter of Nov. 19. Milonas had repeatedly asserted that the Corps had not received the letter. The chief of permits told the newspaper Monday that his office had been advised by the bureau on Dec. 10 (the last day of an extension) that the letter was in the mail. Pierson said that Milonas still has not acknowledged that the letter has been received.

Pierson said that the Corps receive the bureau's letter before a meeting could be arranged. He said that he would now contact the Federal Highway Administration, the Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife, the Corps of Engineers, Warren Borough, the Dept. of Transportation and others to set a date for a meeting as early as possible in January to reach a point of agreement on the bureau's suggestions.

Pierson said that officials at all levels have been caught by surprise by the bureau's suggestions because at no time has there been any indication that these would be a factor in getting their final approval of Phase I. Pierson said that local representatives of the bureau indicated they had not been contacted for information relative to the impact of the 2,000-foot encroachment into the Allegheny River in the vicinity of Deluxe Metal Products Co. Pierson said that highway officials have indicated there will be no major problems encountered in the objections registered by Deluxe Metal and other private citizens, nor will there be any difficulty in negotiating with the bureau on their suggestion to provide walkways and parking and in meeting siltation requirements.

Cambodian Task Force Relieves Besieged Garrison

SAIGON (AP) — A Cambodian task force broke through Tuesday to relieve a garrison besieged for 10 days on the northeast Cambodian front.

Field reports said the Cambodian troops driving north had reached the garrison at Prakhm, 45 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital.

The rescue force was part of a 7,000-man operation aimed at clearing the blockades of both Prakhm and the neighboring town of Taing Kauk. The latter also has been cut off for 10 days.

The Cambodian campaign follows a disastrous 20,000-man operation on the northeast front which ended early this month after Communist-led forces had chopped up government supply and communications routes.

American aircraft were reported to have made heavy strikes in support of the new operation, which began Monday.

In Phnom Penh, the roar of heavy bombing could be heard, and officials said an enemy force was building up only 12 miles to the east of the city.

In eastern Cambodia two more U.S. helicopters were shot down and six crewmen wounded while supporting a South Vietnamese drive against enemy staging areas, the U.S. Command reported in Saigon.

secret balloting. He showed strength all the way, but was blocked by a big power veto both Friday and Monday.

There is nothing in the rules, however, to prevent a vetoed candidate from being renominated for succeeding ballots and this is what was done.

On Tuesday's ballot Waldheim received 11 affirmative votes, one negative and three abstentions. The negative vote, however, came from a non-permanent member and was not a veto.

Waldheim is a career diplomat who began his foreign service in 1945 as a member of the staff of Austria's Paris embassy. He served as permanent U.N. representative for his country from 1964 to 1968, when he returned home to become foreign minister.

In April 1971 he ran as the candidate for the Conservative Peoples party in Austria's presidential election against Socialist Franz Jonas. He lost by 260,000 votes.

Since then Waldheim has been back at the world organization in his old post as permanent representative.

Diplomats said Waldheim was able to win the secretary-general contest because the Chinese Communists, who had vetoed him on Friday and Monday, finally yielded to persuasion by Waldheim and others.

First word of his selection came from a U.N. official who emerged from the closed session after Tuesday's single round of voting. Later a communiqué said the council had adopted a resolution recommending to the assembly "that Mr. Kurt Waldheim be appointed secretary-general of the United Nations."

Commenting on the result of the ballot, Argentina's ambassador Ortiz de Rozas said: "I think the council has made the wisest choice."

Asked if he was not disappointed about not winning the

Pay Board Tackles Problem Of Aerospace Wage Contracts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pay Board Tuesday reviewed new aerospace contracts containing 12 per cent pay raises that strain the board's rules.

The board said last week that even special circumstances would not justify pay raises over 7 per cent a year, but at the same time chairman George Boldt refused to predict that the panel would trim back the aerospace pacts.

A spokesman said the board members hoped to dispose of the aerospace contracts Tuesday so they could adjourn for the holidays. But he said he could not say when the dissent-ridden panel would be able to reach a decision.

"We're afraid we're going to get skunked," one union source complained Tuesday.

He noted that the agreements were concluded at a time when the board had not spelled out what exceptions it would make to its general 5.5 per cent a year guideline, and before it announced a 7 per cent lid on even exceptional cases.

"They can't apply these rules retroactively, can they?" he said. "I didn't think the board was big on retroactivity."

Elsewhere on the economic front:

—The newly devalued dollar passed its first test Tuesday as it rode well above parity levels when European money markets reopened for the first time since last week's international agreement on widespread currency revaluations.

Stock prices touched off Monday by the dollar devaluation sputtered in early trading Tuesday and for a time the Board finally produced a closing gain of 3.31 in the Dow Jones average of 30 leading industrial stocks, lifting that index to 888.32.

The disputed contracts by the United Auto Workers and the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists cover production workers at various units of North American Rockwell Corp., United Aircraft Corp., Boeing Co., Lockheed Aircraft Corp., McDonnell Douglas Corp., and LTV Aerospace Corp.

Devalued U.S. Dollar Passes Its First Test

LONDON (AP) — The devalued American dollar, riding well above its new parity value, successfully passed its first test in quiet trading on European exchanges Tuesday but weakened slightly at the close.

A wave of buying with big money men unloading their hoards of pounds, marks and guilders for cut-price dollars, failed to materialize as predicted.

Both the South African and Yugoslav governments announced devaluation of their currencies in relation to gold. Pretoria cut the rand's value by 12.28 per cent and Belgrade slashed the dinar by 18.73 per cent.

West Germany halted the floating of the mark that has lasted since May 10 and tied it to a new fixed parity of 3.2225 marks to $1.

Foreign exchanges reopened hesitantly in most major centers after Monday's shutdown to prepare for the new currency rates agreed in a weekend meeting in Washington of finance ministers of the Group of Ten, the richest non-Communist nations.

Dealers had widely predicted that speculators would start reaping their profits by exchanging for cheaper dollars the vast sums of European currencies they had bought up since last May. Prices were marked up accordingly to meet the expected onslaught.

The Italian government was forced to start selling dollars during the afternoon to bring the value down after it had burst through its ceiling of 594.60 lire. The rate reached 594.75 lire and then eased back to close at 594.10.

The dollar also hit the ceiling level of 314.93 yen in Tokyo, the first exchange market to open. Dealers said about $55 million changed hands and the dollar finally closed at 314.17 yen. The new parity rate is 308 yen to $1.

Q. One question property owners ask each other but never seem to find the answer is: How can school boards and other government officials arbitrarily raise the millage on property without a vote by the taxpayer? In Ohio, these questions are settled in the voting booth. I have attended school board meetings (not in Warren County) but when I resided elsewhere and the proceedings clearly indicate the taxpayer is the last person considered in their actions. Never any question about economy or alternatives to save money. Why? Because the pocket book is open—so just add on another five or 10 mills. C.M.W.

A. We agree that taxes are too high. You mentioned the setup in Ohio which mandates certain levies be settled in the voting booth. That's one of the big differences in the tax structure between Pennsylvania and our neighboring state and it's been suggested that Pennsylvania law be changed to provide the same sort of controls. But it should be pointed out that school districts and other governmental bodies in Ohio have a habit of closing down when the voters turn down a levy. And, as much as we dislike current taxes, few would want to see this occur. Actually, you do have an opportunity to hit back at officials you think are raising taxes unjustly—in the voting booth at election time and by actively opposing them when they come up for re-election and working for their opponents. And between elections, you can let them know you disapprove of their actions by letter or phone.

House Committee Chairman Attacks Welfare For Abortions

HARRISBURG (AP) — The chief chairman of the House Appropriations Committee today attacked the State Department's medical needs for some abortions, vowed to block further operations until the policy is changed.

Rep. Martin P. Mullen, whose committee handles all money in the House, told department officials at a public hearing that he is never going to get a vote out of me for an operation unless this (the abortion policy) is stopped. This is the most terrible thing I've seen. There's going to be a lot of fellows like me in the House of Representatives. The welfare department is financing therapeutic abortions under its medical assistance program for the poor. I don't think the department is performing abortions as approved by the Pennsylvania Medical Society. In cases where the health or life of the mother is threatened; there's a chance of physical or mental impairment for the infant; or the mother became pregnant from rape or incest.

The woman's physician, plus two other doctors must concur in a decision that the abortion should take place. The operation must be performed in an accredited hospital.

The Appropriations Committee is holding hearings on the welfare department's current and future spending policies. The abortion controversy was brought up by Mullen during discussion of the state's medical assistance program.

Mullen has been outspoken against abortion, and has introduced legislation to make all abortions illegal. The legality of Pennsylvania's abortion laws will be argued before the State Supreme Court in January.

Mullen told department officials they had no right to make a policy decision to partially pay for abortions without consulting the legislature.

"If you don't do what we think is right, we have the means to do something about it," he said.

Later, Mullen commented, "We (legislators) represent the people, not the department of welfare. Next year we're going to fight this out (the abortion question) in the legislature, and we'll either say you can have an abortion or not. But I don't think you have the right to do this on your own."

Marx S. Leopold, chief counsel for the department, told Mullen, "It's our interpretation that a therapeutic abortion is legal."

Beal said the department has subsidized 4,000-5,000 abortions since the state began such payments on March 1, 1968.

The state pays $50 in doctors' fees, plus reasonable cost for the woman's hospital stay. Department officials said the current average payment for hospitalization is $61.58-a-day, with the woman staying an average of five to six days.

While the officials said most abortions are performed in Pennsylvania, the Commonwealth also finances out-of-state abortions, but applies Pennsylvania's eligibility standards. In other words, the out-of-state abortions must be therapeutic, even in states like New York, which liberalized eligibility regulations.

There was little discussion on the pros and cons of abortions, except for a brief comment from Rep. Charles F. Mebus, R-Montgomery.

Saying he agreed with Mullen that the department should consult with the legislature before starting such a controversial policy, the lawmaker then added: "I feel this is a matter of religious freedom. Mr. Mullen and I could debate that, but this isn't the time for it."

State Welfare Department Undergoes Massive Reorganization Program

By BOB ROGGE

The Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare is undergoing a major reorganization which will consolidate many of its present offices and functions into three main areas; the Office of Income Maintenance, the Office of Children and Youth and the Office of Adult Programs, said Secretary of Public Welfare, Mrs. Helene Wohlgenuth.

In making the announcement, Mrs. Wohlgenuth said, "This Department, recognizing the sobering realities of public reaction to the chaotic welfare scene, has committed itself to restoring order to the department's programming and public confidence in the department's fiscal integrity and accountability as its first priority."

The Office of Income Maintenance will consist of five separate bureaus — Systems Development, Policy, Field Review, Quality Control and Claims Settlement. The Bureau of Systems Development will work with regional and state personnel as well as county boards of assistance for effective administration of income maintenance (cash assistance) programs and will operate a central location and support unit to aid courts in locating and securing support funds from absent parents.

The Bureau of Policy will maintain close liaison with appropriate units in other program offices to insure consistent policies for eligibility determination and other areas of common interest between the case grant and other programs and will establish policies and issue the regulations that govern income maintenance programs.

The Bureau of Field Review will periodically assess county boards of assistance to ensure department policies are understood and followed and that effective office management practices are utilized and that personnel and other resources are efficiently employed.

The Bureau of Quality Control will ensure that cash grant, food stamp and medical assistance programs are operated in accordance with pursuant rates of ineligibility, rates of over and underpayment and to discover sources of error.

A Bureau of Claims Settlements will collect reimbursements and restitution due the department under the public assistance program. It will also handle the registering and collection of property encumbrances executed in favor of the department.

The Office of Children and Youth, says Mrs. Wohlgenuth, will establish policies and standards and provide technical assistance to all social service programs intended to strengthen family life; protect children from abuse, neglect and exploitation; prevent delinquency; provide substitute care for children and promote individual growth and development. It will consult regularly with the Office of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Medical Programs to ensure that gaps in services, inconsistencies in policies and duplication of effort do not occur, she said.

A Bureau of Child Welfare Programs will be a part of this office and will place emphasis on those programs providing for the dependent, abused and neglected child, counseling and referral, protective care, foster home care, group care in homes and institutions, homemaker service and adoption.

A Bureau of Youth Programs has been established for the prevention and treatment of behavioral problems that pose threats to the personal development of young people or to the safety of the community. Additionally, a Bureau of Child Development will develop plans for model day care and other child development centers, including plans for physical plants as well as program needs, said Mrs. Wohlgenuth.

In the realm of the adult and the elderly, the Office of Adult Programs will be a part of the reorganized department, Mrs. Wohlgenuth said.

"The 1,300,000 elderly citizens of Pennsylvania are the ones most hurt by the rigidity of bureaucracy," she said. "They suffer the common ills of the aged; low income, poor housing, inadequate medical care, few employment opportunities and a dearth of community services. They have not been included in the scope of the major state-operated programs of social services, except incidentally, as a portion of the adult program, without regard to their special needs or desires," she added.

A Bureau for the Aging will provide assistance to social service programs for the aging such as counseling, referral, foster care, day care, homemaker service, development of community centers, housing, transportation, volunteer services and meal services.

The Office of Adult Programs will also contain a Bureau for the Visually Handicapped to develop programs intended to prevent blindness and preserve sight; restore visually handicapped persons to economic and personal independence; and provide business opportunities to selected persons. The programs will serve both children and adults.

A Bureau of Supportive Services will have as its major functions the planning and establishing of policies and standards for social programs other than those intended for aging or visually handicapped. It will concentrate on counseling and referral, housing services, education, training or retraining to regain or continue employment and legal services, Mrs. Wohlgenuth concluded.

65-Year-Olds May Apply For New Coverage

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A Blue Cross official says western Pennsylvania residents may apply for Blue Cross and-or Blue Shield special coverage as they reach age 65, even though they are not enrolled under regular coverage at that time.

William H. Ford, president of Blue Cross of western Pennsylvania, said the new policy would provide earlier protection for many people, who, under the old program, would have had to wait for a special open enrollment period.

Ford said the program provides broad protection by adding to, but not duplicating, the hospital benefits provided by Medicare Part A. The agreement extends inpatient services for 30 additional days, according to Ford, and pays the hospital deductible and co-insurance amounts required under Medicare.

Ping-Pong Policies

Anyone who has followed the warnings and recall of products from the market that have been so consistently repetitive over the past few years through the actions of various governmental agencies concerned with the health of the nation and the welfare of its citizens must be experiencing some degree of frustration because of the several "on again, off again" rulings which have come about recently.

Certainly the housewife must be a bit confused over the "detergent" issue. For she had no more than become sold on the idea of substituting a reconstituted product for her favorite phosphate detergent, and soap makers had poured millions of dollars into supplying outlets with their no-phosphate products, than the government agencies did a complete flipflop and recommended that phosphate-laden detergents be given the nod over the substitutes.

While the substitutes, mostly containing strong caustics, did pose a threat to children who came in contact with them, and this seems to be the chief reasoning behind the switch, there are reasons to think the matter could have been straightened out through proper labeling of the products and the benefits of the no-phosphates detergents retained to contribute toward the purity of our water supplies.

Now the government is stressing the need for the construction of treatment plants capable of rendering the phosphates harmless. But it is not emphasizing the fact that the earliest date at which such construction could become effective to any great extent would be some 10 to 25 years in the future. And a lot of eutrophication of our streams, lakes, and rivers can be taking place in the meantime.

Considering the overall handling of the "detergent" question, the several other incidents of "scare" warnings being blasted out of Washington which later proved to be less than catastrophic in nature when exposed to proper investigation, and the continual beating of the drums to warn us as to what is happening to the environment, one can only wonder what is going on down there on the banks of the Potomac.

Is it plain hanky-panky, politics, or emotional over-reaction? This is something the public has a right to know.

Deck The Halls With TV Football

By Russell Baker

WASHINGTON -- Football has finally challenged Christmas for the title by scheduling six hours of televised semi-demi-championship football straight down the middle of Christmas afternoon. By Saturday night, when it is all over, we shall finally know who is number one -- Santa Claus or Pete Rozelle.

Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League, is the spiritual embodiment of America's favorite sport; just as Mr. Claus is the symbol of America's favorite occasion. In Las Vegas, where sentimentality is a thing called a hole-in-the-head, odds makers have made football as a heavy favorite to blow Christmas right out of the living room.

Eddie the Turk, the famous odds-maker, says Christmas is playing out of its league. Santa Claus, at a mere 215 pounds, cannot stop the run against those big two-ton lines and, being only 4 feet 10 inches tall, he will be hard pressed to cover against deep receivers and shut off the bomb.

In Eddie's view, Christmas should have swallowed its pride. Just because it has always occupied Dec. 25 in the past, he says, was not sufficient reason for it, in these changing times, to insist too urgently upon a date that fell this year on a Saturday.

Everybody realizes, of course, that weekends in late December belong to football. Christmas could have avoided the showdown by accepting a Monday. Washington's Birthday now occurs on Monday, no matter whether it is Washington's Birthday or not; why can't Christmas do the same and stay out of football's territory?

The sportswriters for the most part concur with Eddie the Turk's judgment that Christmas is in for a bad drubbing this Saturday, and on paper their reasoning seems sound.

What American man, after all, would spend the afternoon trying to repair a fractured plastic monster with dead batteries when he could be sitting inert in front of an illuminated box?

Given the option of staring silently at Roger Staubach surrounded by snow tires and beer cans, how many men will choose instead to have a long chat with visiting in-laws?

Those who think this Saturday will be an easy romp for football, however, may be overlooking the ingenuity of women. A survey of one neighborhood here in Washington shows a surprising resistance among women.

Two or three have threatened divorce if their husbands abandon them and their children for football on Christmas. These are not to be taken seriously. At this stage of football development in America, all the women who will get divorces because of football have probably already done so, and the rest are probably bluffing.

More serious threats are being made. One woman has bought a shotgun. She has not told her husband yet, because she believes surprise will be more effective for her plan. Her plan is to produce her new shotgun if her husband turns on a football game and blow the television set to Kingdom Come.

Another woman has adopted the rule of reason. She has told her husband he can have six hours of Christmas afternoon for football, if he gives the family six hours elsewhere in the day.

For this purpose, she intends to rouse the entire family at 2 a.m. on Christmas Day, have them open their gifts, and have breakfast by 3. By 4 a.m., toys will be breaking and batteries will start to fail. The children will start to harass their father to put things together again.

By 10 a.m., when Christmas dinner is ready, he will be exhausted in body, the result of having had only two hours sleep, and in spirit, ever the result of man's losing struggle with plastic. By 1 p.m. when the first football game starts, he will be ready for bed, as will the rest of the family, who will feel free to go.

At about that time, his in-laws will arrive, and they will all try to keep him from falling asleep in the middle of fantastic 97-yard drives. By talking to him.

One neighborhood woman, whose husband is almost sightless without spectacles, intends to hide his eyeglasses by roasting them into the turkey dressing. Another is plotting a major power failure and another, who truly despises football, has had a large oak near the house sawed in such a way that a slight push will send it crashing down on the television aerial.

At one of the more civilized houses in this neighborhood, the man heading the family is doing the only sensible thing. He is giving instructions to women and children in how to watch football.

Economic Stabilization

This column of questions and answers on the President's Economic Stabilization Program is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service. The column answers questions most frequently asked about wages and prices.

Q. Are longevity increases counted as part of the 5.5 percent standard on wages and salaries set by the Pay Board?

A. No. Longevity increases are allowed to go into effect according to the terms of plans, agreements, or established practices in existence prior to November 14, 1971, without regard to the 5.5 percent general wage standard.

Q. Under what conditions are sales of real estate exempt from coverage under the economic stabilization program?

A. Sales of the following categories of real estate are exempt from coverage under the economic stabilization program:

- 1) unimproved real estate;
- 2) real estate with improvements completed prior to August 15, 1971; and
- 3) real estate with improvements completed on or after August 15, 1971 if the sales price is determined after the completion of construction or the wage rates are known to the builder and are not altered by actions of the Pay Board after the sales price is established.

Q. Are profits controlled under the economic stabilization program?

A. Price increases are not allowed to raise the rate of profit per dollar of sales above what it was in the profit margin base period. The term, "base period," in this context means the average of any two of a person's last three fiscal years that ended prior to August 15, 1971. The person may select which two fiscal years will apply.

Q. I am retiring from my job this month. During the August 15-November 13 freeze, I was scheduled to receive an increase in retirement benefits. Will this increase now be allowed to take effect retroactively?

A. Yes. Employees who would have become eligible for a new or increased benefit during the freeze and who otherwise cannot become eligible for the benefit may be granted the benefit retroactively.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round
Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON—In a stern, private memo to his staff, Senator Hubert Humphrey has turned down suggestions that he strike back at Lyndon Johnson who, in his memoirs, sometimes made himself look good at the expense of his former Vice President.

Humphrey was asked to write a review of LBJ's memoirs. Some staff members urged him to use this device to set the record straight and tell how his advice on Vietnam was ignored by Johnson.

Humphrey rattled off a quick reply, which was put into memo form intended for the eyes of his aides only.

"It has been suggested that such a review," he said, "would give me an opportunity to criticize the book, particularly on Vietnam, and in that fashion win some political friends. I'm not going to do it! I will have nothing to do with it!"

"Lyndon Johnson has been my friend for more than 20 years. We helped each other as Senators, and we worked together when he was majority leader. He helped me become majority whip.

"Muriel and I have been close to him and to Lady Bird. He selected me as his Vice President, and he helped me in my campaign for the presidency.

"There are always those who try to get me to publicize our differences on Vietnam. I can't see what good that will do the country. He read my memos and listened to my point of view. He had no obligation or responsibility to follow my judgment.

"He was the President, and surely those who know anything about our government must realize there can only be one official voice in the Executive Branch. It is the President's, not the Vice President's.

"I will not now be party to any scheme to cut up Lyndon Johnson...I insist that everybody associated with me understand my point of view on the subject of Lyndon Johnson. This point of view is to be strictly adhered to regardless of political consequences."

CHINESE PUZZLE

Our cloak-and-dagger boys in Hong Kong have come up with additional evidence that Lin Piao, the missing Chinese defense minister and heir apparent, died in a plane crash after attempting to assassinate Mao Tse-tung.

The episode was triggered, reportedly, by Mao's move to bring the army back under party control.

In the course of restoring order after the Red Guard rampages of the 1960s, military men had moved into key positions. But Mao sought to restrain them by citing one of his oracular sayings.

"The party commands the gun," he decreed. "The gun must never be allowed to command the party." The ailing Lin Piao, perhaps egged on by his military underlings, is said to have resisted.

Painstakingly, our Hong Kong hawkshaws have put together the pieces in the great Chinese puzzle. Here's the picture that has emerged:

Last August, Mao returned from a visit to South China by train. Lin Piao, knowing Mao's itinerary would take him through Shanghai and Wuhsi, arranged an assassination attempt in Shanghai. It failed.

Lin then planned to blow up a bridge in Wuhsi to wreck Mao's train. This, too, failed. Mao left his train at Wuhsi and hurried to Peking, arriving there on September 12.

He ordered the immediate arrest of Gen. Huang Yung-sheng, the Army Chief of Staff; Gen. Wu Fa-shien, the Air Force Commander; Gen. Li Tso-peng, the navy political commissar; and Gen. Chiu Hutso, the deputy chief of staff.

Mao gave them 10 days to confess.

Meanwhile, Lin had been preparing to flee to Russia on September 13. He apparently got wind of the arrests and took off earlier on September 12 from Hai-pien in a British-built Trident jet airliner.

Mao gave orders, according to one report, for the Air Force not to pursue Lin's plane. It crashed, nevertheless, in the Wenteukhan area of Mongolia.

On September 24, the arrested military leaders were summarily removed from office, and special "case groups" were dispatched to the various regions to investigate and purge other disloyal officers.

As for old Mao, he came up with another proverb. "The enemy is nothing to fear," he recited sadly. "What hurt me most was the arrow fired by my ally and his smiling face after I was wounded."

Footnote: This account of Lin's disappearances comes from informants who are considered reliable. It should be kept in mind, however, that the Chinese are masters at planting tidbits of information in such a way that they can be pieced together to form a wholly erroneous picture.

The Reader Speaks

Gentlemen:

Recently in the paper, you stated the increase in salary for the administration of the Warren County Schools. I would like to know why the school board is so liberal in granting this raise to the administration when it does not follow the pay board guidelines, after having stuck so close to the guidelines in their negotiations with the teachers.

It has taken a bill through Congress stating teachers salaries negotiated before the freeze could be paid, but the board agrees easily to make the administration raise retroactive to July 1. The board agreed to pay the teachers the full amount of their raise only because it was under the 5 per cent as set by the pay board, but agrees easily to give the administration a raise that is above the 5 per cent. This recent act by the board would appear to be illegal on both accounts.

PENNSYLVANIA STORY Shapp Milking Voters' Ire?

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG —City-bred Governor Shapp is taking the milk cow by the horns and for this he is being applauded by housewives across the State.

Through his determination to meet the milk problem head-on, His Excellency is demonstrating a willingness to withstand "heat" normally ducked by his gubernatorial predecessors. (which revives the oft-told crack by one Governor that there are more head-aches in a bottle of milk than in a quart of whiskey.)

But Governor Shapp isn't laughing; he is taking swift and dramatic action.

And therein lies the under side of the story; the manner in which he is attacking an admittedly serious, chronic problem in Pennsylvania agriculture.

One recent, respected survey shows that milk costs the consumer more in Pennsylvania than anywhere else in the nation.

But perhaps the crucial question is—how can the Pennsylvania housewife buy cheaper milk in this state without, at the same time, putting dairy farmers out of business?

After all, Pennsylvania is a major dairy state and although he reaped headlines by caravanning into New Jersey to buy a cheaper gallon of milk with Agriculture Secretary Jim McHale in tow, it would appear that this raises a question of propriety.

But what really is upsetting the milk bucket is the Governor's highly publicized effort to remove J. Lin Huber as chairman of the Milk Marketing Board by charging him with inefficiency, neglect of duty and misconduct in office.

The politically savvy Governor (gaining the gubernatorial chair is no task for amateurs!) apparently is gambling that the good PR he gains from consumers

(who astronomically outnumber dairy farmers and milk deliverymen) will outweigh the image created with all the power and majesty of the Governor's Office swooping down on a 70-year-old dairy farmer who was called on the carpet for running the milk board the same way it has been for years and years.

(This is not to say that past practice condones continual inefficiency. Progress is a virtue in any governmental endeavor.)

Triggering the Shapp-Huber issue was the milk board's acceptance of $40,000 in surety from a New York state milk dealer to satisfy a $200,000 security bond. The New Yorker went bankrupt, financially imperiling some 100 Pennsylvania dairy farmers. (It should be pointed out that the Legislature swiftly approved a bill recently that would reimburse losses sustained by those dairy farmers.)

So upon the advice of his attorney, Israel Packel, the Governor dusted off a little-known law which apparently entitles the Governor to sit as prosecutor, judge and jury in the Huber issue.

(One published report stated that Attorney General J. Shane Creamer was alleged to have known of the Governor's proposed action against Mr. Huber. The Attorney General, who traditionally is the chief legal advisor to a governor, reportedly advised the Governor against taking this action.)

It is perhaps to his credit that Governor Shapp is taking direct swift action, unlike his predecessors. But, should not the milk problem be attacked by appropriate changes in the milk law, which of course means a job for the Legislature, with full backing from an enlightened Governor, not a prosecutor-judge-jury Governor?

JIM BISHOP: REPORTER Jai Lai-ke It

There is a unique game called jai alai, in which the players play me for my money. They win every time. It is billed as the fastest game in the world. For anyone who has never handled the dice, laid down a hundred, and tossed snake-eyes, it is. Jai alai is so fast that I keep my wallet on my lap.

The game was originally taught to Spanish boys on a blank wall beside a church. The player wears a long curving wicker gadget called a cesta, tied to the wrist. He is given a hard sphere, larger than a golf ball, smaller than a baseball—an object which flies at speed sufficient to splatter the player's brains all over the court, assuming he has same.

My wife and I watch jai alai at a place called the Dania Palace, which is so refined that the losers swear in Sanskrit. The game is played by teams of two men, each of whom wears numbers from one to eight. You can bet any team to win, place or show, as in horse racing, or you can bet a quiniela, in which you must select the winner and the second place team.

There are other bets, such as the Big Q, and the doubles, and the Perfecta, but the crowd bets quinielas. For a trifling six dollars, you may bet numbers 1, 3 and 5, let us say, and no matter in which order they finish, you win. A small quiniela payoff is $18, a big one is $90.

FEMALE LOGIC

Last week the Dania Palace began its winter season, so Mrs. B. and I decided to go. Her position was logical: "In 10 years we haven't won, so this must be the year." To insure the money, we brought Gene and Sophie Kroll along. I put up a hundred and Gene matched it as my partner. The ladies, who had decided by phone that this is the long skirt season, shocked the mascara from each other's eyes by showing up in floor-length lavender skirts.

They gave each other $10 as partners, and got into such a flap, asking a Quia board to give them a winner, that they missed the first match.

I said to Gene: "Someone once said that it is impossible to handicap 26 Spaniards who take a bath together, so let's just play numbers. Any old numbers." "Besides," Gene said, "they are the only animals who can read the odds board."

So we bet a 4-5-6 quiniela and bought two for $12. The idea is that one team serves the hard ball against the wall and, as it comes back, their opponents must catch it in the cesta on no bounces or one bounce and flip it back against the wall in legal territory.

Now if there are eight teams, and you have three going for you, you can't miss—right? Wrong. The 3 team won, and 1 team came in second.

Once you are hooked on a set of numbers, you dare not leave them because, if those numbers win the next match, you strangle yourself manually, and this is not an easy trick. So we stuck to 4-5-6. In the second game, the 8 team won, the 3 team came in second. Oh, I forgot to tell you—the ladies were playing 2 and 7.

They were betting $2 a game and, when they lost twice in a row, they broke the Quia board and decided to bet on which fellows looked "cute." The third game winning combination was 2-4. Gene and I had the 4, the girls had the 2, so we couldn't win if we had 10 per cent of the towel concession in the men's room.

IMPOSSIBLE TO LOSE

I kept telling Kroll that it would be impossible for some combination of 4-5-6 not to win and he kept nodding silently as though a knife was in his back and he was afraid to cough. The fourth match was won by the 5 team and the 3. My wife was standing, with purple ladylike veins standing out of her neck, telling the 2 team (Anoeta and Ramon) that they were muttonheads.

This, translated into Spanish, means "eater of the sheep." So Anoeta listened gravely, and took a deep bow. The quiniela payoffs were $29.20, $21.80, $27.60, $20.60, $42.40, etc., ad nauseam. There were people all around us collecting money. Gene said that none of them looked bright to him, so we went on playing the middle 4-5-6.

In the eighth, the ladies won an $18.60 quiniela and Gene suggested that they take us for midnight coffee and bakka. The two stared as though we were mashers. Out of $20, they had $18.60 and wanted to leave the Dania Palace while they were behind.

Fortunately, there was enough gas in the car. This morning I broke it gently to the kids that they would have to take bologna skin sandwiches to school until Feb. 15th. When they whimpered, I gave them a few smart karate chops.

The game is pronounced "Hi, a lie." The announcer says: "The less you bet the more you lose when you win." I have had the annual dry cleaning...

Peace If Not Good Will

By James Reston

WASHINGTON—Peace this Christmas is something more than a pious hope. It is not assured, and it is certainly not accompanied by much "good will among men," but there are some solid reasons for believing that, while short and vicious wars for limited ends will probably always be with us, we may very well avoid in the last third of the century the wars of the giant nations that convulsed the world in the first and second thirds of the 20th century.

1. The main reason is that the United States, the Soviet Union, and China simply have more to lose than to gain by risking general war, and that nuclear war, which would be almost unavoidable in any conflict between the major powers, is clearly too dangerous to be waged for anything less than the life of any nation.

2. There is not only a new balance of atomic power in the world, but a new political balance as well, with Europe gaining in unity and strength, and Japan and China establishing new power centers of their own, which are likely to make common cause against any other nation that threatens the security of the civilized world.

3. It is no longer necessary for any nuclear power to wage or even threaten war in order to gain access to raw materials or markets essential to maintain a good standard of life for their people. Even on the question of the relative value of currencies, the major financial nations have managed to reach at least a tentative agreement, and while 1972 will be a year of hard bargaining over trade, there is clear evidence that they will be able to agree on regulations at least as effective, and probably more so, as those in effect since the last World War.

This is far from an ideal or even satisfactory foundation for the organization and cooperation of the human family. And it is true that false and even silly optimism contributed mightily to the two unimaginable tragedies of 1914 and 1939, but the recent divisions and pessimism also lead to desperation, so the progress toward accommodation among the major nations, limited and fragile as it may seem, should not be overlooked.

There is a new flexibility in the world. All the major nations are reappraising their former assumptions and modifying their old ideologies, while denying that they are doing so. In this last year alone, President Nixon's economic and foreign policies have been transformed. Moscow has stopped ranting about the "vengeful fascists" in West Germany, but is easing the tensions over Berlin, negotiating arms control in Vienna and Helsinki, and talking business with the U.S., Germany, and Japan.

Meanwhile, China has come out of isolation, and is now not only taking its place in the United Nations, but is serving there as a powerful spokesman of the underdeveloped countries, who are in danger of being overlooked in this new share-the-wealth arrangement among the giants.

Still, there are great dangers at the end of 1971, and the greatest of these, ironically, centers on the conflict between Israel and the Arab States, even on Jerusalem, the symbol of man's hope for peace in all the continents and races. This will take some careful handling in 1972, if another war is to be avoided, but even in the Middle East, while Moscow and Washington are on opposite sides, and keep jockeying for influence and advantage, they seem to agree on avoiding war at best, or staying out of it at worst.

There is another great potential danger, for like the Israeli-Arab conflict, it involves not only geography but philosophy and even theology, and this is the conflict between China and the Soviet Union.

Long before the recent war between India and Pakistan, with the U.S. on one side and the Soviet Union on the other, I asked Couve De Murville, who was then the Ambassador of France to the U.S.—before he became President DeGaulle's foreign minister and prime minister—whether he thought we would ever see another major war in our time. I asked him this because we were at a birthday party and happened to be almost precisely the same age.

No, he said, he didn't think so, but maybe there would be one great war in the last third of the century: between Russia and China over India. It seemed a fantastic suggestion at the time, but after the events of the last few weeks, one wonders in the night.

Even so, at Christmas of 1971, something has to be said for the possibility of peace, even in secular terms. Certainly not in terms of peace or understanding, and "good will" but in terms of the absence of major war. The accommodations of power, and the fear of war have given us time to think about what to do. They have not settled anything, but they have given us a chance to talk about the things that unite the nations instead of concentrating on the things that divide them and lead them to war.

The question for 1972 is how to use the time that is spent avoiding the big wars, and who will use it in America and in the other major nations to get beyond the mere absence of war to a constructive and cooperative peace for the whole human family.

(Editor's Note: This third installment in a five-part Christmas series about the Incarnation deals with the nativity itself, the birth of that singular one, Jesus.)

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer

From a star called the sun, a tiny, invisible quantum of heat and energy sped through 93 million miles of dark, empty space until it reached a little spot of ground. And there, a violet blooms.

It is a common everyday thing, brightening the earth.

On a different plane, yet figuratively comparable so that incessantly changing transformation between energy and matter, a transaction took place in the change of Christmas between manhood and its maximum. And eyes now see.

"The light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ," Scripture puts it.

He was born in a dusky stable, the son of the wife of a migrant carpenter in a conquered, exploited land and he lived as a man of the poor, always facing official hostility.

But his impact suffused the world, fired its ideals, lit its hope. And the present era dawned.

"Emmanuel," his friend, Matthew, said of him. "God with us."

It was an unparalleled occurrence in human annals, the "Incarnation," believers call it, the divine becoming man. How it happened, how he could be both infinite and finitely human

Mother, Child and Joseph in Bethlehem

and what it means have engrossed thinkers ever since. The "absolute paradox," the brooding Danish philosopher, Soren Kierkegaard, termed it.

Old Controversies Gone

Many of the antiquated controversies have faded, however, in a modern culture dulled to exploding change and unprecedented phenomena. Amid it all, the image of Jesus persists unequalled, compelling, transcending the old debates.

He reveals that "all of human history is swathed in God's love," says Catholic theologian Edward Schillebeeckx. Through him, "God now stands in our midst in a tangible manifestation in a form so we can truly bump into him."

This was a prime point of Jesus' mission—to proclaim a mending of the gap between God and man, to draw them nearer, in personal terms, and to forge that bond himself in man's behalf.

"God was genuinely enfleshed in him," says Protestant theologian John M. Cobb, an exponent of "process" thought, which sees all existence as evolving toward ever fuller rapport.

"God is incarnate in all things, but the fullness of the Incarnation is to be found in Jesus."

This view has stirred a widening "incarnational theology," which emphasizes divine residence in the material milieu and human grain rather than in some far-blue blue yonder.

"We are seeing today that if God is to be experienced at all, he is to be experienced in an incarnational way, that is, through our relations with our brothers and sisters," says Catholic theologian Richard P. McBrien.

He Raised Standards

And this, he adds, involves fraternity, human solidarity, friendship, mutual compassion, forgiveness, justice, reconciliation, plus work and high hope for an open, unrestricted future—which were the standards raised by Jesus.

The current generation seems less hung up on the old technical arguments about the mechanics of Jesus' arrival, or "how" he could be entirely Godly and manly. The concentration is more on what it signifies.

This also is the chief concern of scholars, but since faith, in its human frailty, is always subject to a higher truth than its own, it recognizes the constant need for self-criticism, search and openness to a clearer grasp of it.

This is also the chief concern of scholars

"Man's situation in this life must always remain that of seeking fuller understanding," says Catholic theologian Avery Dulles.

So the studies go on, progressing and expanding into the immemorial issues. One of them involves the doctrine that Jesus was born of the Virgin Mary through the power of the Holy Spirit without a human father.

"Let it be to me according to thy word," Mary said, in that enchanting scene of the angelic announcement and of her willing, free assent—which always is a factor in the divine approach to humanity.

The beauty and power of the story are not questioned among Christians, nor are its profound implications. But what literary method was used in getting them across is an issue of keen feelings in some quarters.

"It is very surprising that the doctrine of the virgin birth should arouse so much controversy," says Anglican theologian John Macquarrie, adding that it is not the physiological details but their meaning that is vital to faith.

That meaning, clearly, is that Christ's origin was in God, and that divine initiative was behind his advent. To convey this, the virgin birth is an "appropriate symbol," Macquarrie says. So the basic point is not the problem.

Some Facts Questioned

However, many Bible scholars, both Protestants and some Roman Catholics, now question whether the accounts, recorded only in Matthew and Luke, are intended as factual journalism or as rich imagery to convey realities that could not be reduced to flat prose.

It's not a questioning that "Jesus was God's unique Son," says Catholic Bible scholar Raymond E. Brown.

"Protestant and Catholic theologians firmly agree that Jesus would be no less divine if he had two human parents rather than one and that human fatherhood does not exclude divine fatherhood," he adds.

However, he notes that while most New Testament material is based on the testimony of the disciples who accompanied Jesus, they weren't on hand to report the infancy stories and the basis for them remains uncertain.

Also, neither the oldest gospel, Mark, nor the most interpretative gospel, John, mention the virgin birth. Nor do any of 23 other books of the New Testament, including letters of Paul that are earlier than any of the gospels.

Catholic theologian Gregory Baum suggests the infancy narratives may be a common Jewish literary form called "midrash" in which the Virgin Mary stands for a virgin, faithful Israel through whom the redeemer comes to the world.

In any case, he adds, the meaning is clear—that Jesus' entry into the world was "something new" and that basically he came "not from his human ancestors but from God himself."

On the other hand, the evidence is not all one-sided. Early non-Biblical writings opposed to Jesus claim his birth was illegitimate and it is hard to explain where this calumny came from unless there was something unusual about his birth.

Also, there had been no expectation in Judaism or a virgin-born messiah; and the infancy narratives differ strikingly from stories in pagan religions of "supernatural births" to human mothers.

In these, it always is a manlike "god" that impregnates the mother, not necessarily a virgin, through sexual intercourse—an anthropomorphic view totally contrary to the Judeo-Christian concept of God and radically at odds with the infancy narratives themselves.

Certainly the main point of the narratives is not just a biological anomaly, a case of parthenogenesis, which is rare but real in nature.

Some Christians contend that to take that aspect as clinically literal is to diminish Jesus' genuine humanity, while others claim that not to do so is to undercut his divinity. But many feel that it makes absolutely no difference which way you regard the incidents—so long as you appreciate the heart of the matter.

A Gift of God

And the gist of it is that Jesus is "truly God's gift and not man's achievement," says Lutheran theologian George W. Forell. "The movement is from God to man and not from man to God."

Yet, other battling factors about him also persist, even though modern physical sciences and psychology have, in a sense, dispelled some of the blind spots and made thought more open to unpredictable possibilities in life.

As for the age-old problem of how Jesus could be both God and man, people today recognize more readily the complex qualities both conscious and latent in human nature itself.

Most all persons experience a certain duality in themselves, a tension between reality and their aspirations, between drives and limitations, between trust and doubt, between heritage and environment, between spontaneity and restraint.

"It is inescapably part of our mystery as human beings," says Catholic scholar Thomas E. Clarke. "we struggle with it without ever mastering it."

But in Jesus, the mastery over self is seen as total, a complete answering of trust to the divine call within him, so that it was perfect in him as man.

Considered the "self-revelation of God," he also says something just as remarkable about man.

In him, "God has made clear who he is, and what we are meant to be," says Protestant theologian John Dillenberger. "We know, then, who God is and what we are to become." Thus, "we can speak of Jesus Christ as both God and man."

"The transcendent dimensions are so clear," he adds, "that the description of him as 'substantial' with the Godhead, while borrowed from language of the early centuries, becomes intelligible."

Mystery Continues

Yet the mystery of him continues, a mystery first wrapped in the mingled "greatness" and "ungreatness" of Bethlehem, that rough yet tender setting where the harshness and grandeur of life came together.

"It is not only comforting but disturbing, too," says Lutheran scholar Edmund A. Steimle. "It means that God sees possibilities for greatness in the most ordinary of ordinary lives."

And the peasant Jewish girl,

Frederick S. Morton, Charlottesville, Va. and Ralph T. King, Cleveland, Ohio, have been elected to the boards of directors of Bradford Coca Cola Bottling Co., Inc.; Seneca Bottling Inc. and Jamestown Bottling, Inc.

George H. Daggett Jr. remains as president of the Jamestown firm and was elected president of the Bradford and Seneca facilities.

The three companies, engaged in the soft drink business, manufacture and distribute Coca Cola, Sprite, Tab, Fresca, Orange Crush, Hire's Root Beer and White Rock.

Mary, sang of it: "My spirit rejoices in God my Savior, for he has regarded the low estate of his handmaiden. Henceforth all generations will call me blessed; for he who is mighty has done great things for me and holy is his name."

She gave birth to her first-born son, wrapped him in swaddling clothes and laid him in a manger.

And an angel voice heralded the "news of great joy...for to you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, who is Christ the Lord." And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying, Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace...long men with whom he is pleased!"

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter signed "Swinger's Wife" was terrific. Did you hear from her again? I am dying to know. Please update your readers.—WIFE OF A TEXAS ROMEO

DEAR WIFE: First, I think we ought to refresh the memories of the other readers with a re-run of the letter you are inquiring about:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband reads your column every day. When you print a letter that gives my husband a break he always says, "Hey, look at this one."

I'm addressing this to him and if I'm lucky enough to see it in the paper I'm going to say, "Hey, look at this one."

DEAR SWINGER: You are nearly 40. Your children are growing up and they don't know you. You haven't been around home much. You don't know me very well, either. Whenever I try to talk about things that trouble me you shut me off by calling me a "nag." In a few years (sooner than you think) you'll be too tired to swing. The chicks you've been chasing will suddenly not seem worth the effort. You'll want to be part of the family. But it will be too late. Your children will be strangers. You did not want to be part of their lives when they needed you and they will not permit you to become part of their lives when you need them.

I used to feel that I had failed you. I blamed myself for not being a better wife. Now I know that no matter what I had done the results would have been the same. You weren't interested in a better wife—or ANY wife. So I've built a life which doesn't include you and I'm—HAPPIER THAN YOU THINK

Please print it, Ann, and I'll let you know what happens.—SWINGER'S WIFE

DEAR READERS: I received 47 letters from women who wrote to say, "My husband was sure I had written that letter and he wanted to talk about it." Some of the women said it resulted in the best communication they had had in years. A wife from San Diego reported that her husband had the column in his hand and in her presence, telephoned his girl friend and told her he wasn't going to see her anymore.

So it appears the column did a lot of good and I am grateful to Swinger's Wife for having written it. Thank you for asking what happened.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several of my friends were discussing the letter from the mother who said she was getting a great deal more pleasure out of her poodles than her two married children. My friends were surprised. I wasn't. I know what goes on with pets in this country and it's disgraceful.

Last summer we traveled a lot. One day when the maid came in to make up our beds the bathroom door was closed. She asked, "Is there a dog in there?" When I said "No" she heaved a sigh of relief and told us that she had been bitten by dogs and scratched by cats—pets of hotel guests who had shut them up in the bathroom and neglected to tell her that they were there. She also described what these animals did to the rugs, bedspreads and furniture. It was disgusting.

We witnessed one scene I'll never forget. A mother and father were swimming in a shallow river with their three small children and the family dog. They were short one life jacket, so the oldest kid, about 11, didn't get a jacket. The mutt had one, however.

That same family spent the night in the motel room next to ours and the mutt howled till 4:00 a.m. My hat is off to all hotel and motel managers who say: "No Dogs Allowed."—BARBOURVILLE, KY.

DEAR BARB: Make that two hats. Thanks for writing.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet, "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ackley Grange Holds Christmas Party

The program included a welcome by Bruce Cable, and carol singing with Catherine Van Orsdale at the piano and Delbert Werle on the saxophone.

A playlet, "Keep Christ in Christmas," was performed by the grange youth. Todd and Jill Swanson gave a silent recitation, and Mike and Jackie Zimmerman and Heather Beck gave readings.

The Christmas message was given by the Rev. John Squires, minister of the Russell and Akeley United Methodist Churches.

Ida Grace Larson conducted the children's story time with a story, and a game was conducted by Mabel Sechrist. Gifts from under the tree were then distributed.

A buffet supper, arranged by Florence Van Cise and Gertrude Moore climaxed the evening.

The next regular meeting of the grange is to be held Friday, Jan. 7, preceded by the annual dues paying supper at 6:30 p.m.

Minister Attends Convention

Returning home from a three-day Bible refresher course at Waterford, Pa. is Theodore Smith, presiding minister of Warren congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses.

Reporting on the activity of Jehovah's Witnesses, Smith said, "1208 were in attendance Sunday at the Fort Le Boeuf High School in Waterford to hear John Gibbard, district supervisor as he discussed the subject, "Can you live Forever?—Will You?"

Gibbard said, "All our hopes and pleasures depend on life—our dearest possession. Many things we would like to do both for those we love and for our enjoyment, but time goes so fast, life seems so short." After quoting facts on this he commented, "Medical science cannot assure any major increase in life span. God tells us why man dies and has already provided the means by which we can obtain eternal life, the corresponding ransom offered by Jesus Christ."

On Friday, 856 were on hand for the opening session and heard six students speak on a variety of Bible subjects, this during a model Ministry School. The Witnesses were assisted to see how they could be more effective in their ministry by a series of talks and presentations relative to the house-to-house visits and Bible Study service that the Witnesses are known for in 207 lands.

Saturday morning, 31 candidates symbolized their dedication to Jehovah God, by submitting to water immersion. They are now fully ordained as ministers and will actively continue their Bible education work through the Kingdom Halls in the area. Smith said it is our desire, "that during 1972 even more persons hear and take advantage of the free Home Bible Study activity offered by Jehovah's Witnesses."

Keep Christmas With Your Movie Camera

WHEN THE KIDS HAVE GROWN you can still have Christmas memories

Of all the many expressions of Christmas the most delightful are those of small children on Christmas morning. This year, for the first time, you can capture them on movie film with all of their spontaneous naturalness.

A new movie camera, used with the new, faster movie film, photographs anything you can see through the viewfinder and makes it possible to film without movie lights in the light of Christmas morning as well as in the golden glow of a candlelit Christmas Eve.

Trimming the tree is a subject second in interest only to opening the gifts. You can photograph the trimmers at work, or shoot a few frames of the tree alone at each stage of the decorating so that in the finished film it will appear to decorate itself magically.

To capture the most of Christmas eve or morning, have it understood that handling the camera is everybody's job. Passing the camera from hand to hand should result in pictures of the entire family group and the changes in view-point and angle will add interest to the finished movie.

Vary the distance from camera to subject and remember that five to fifteen seconds, averaging at ten, is the most satisfactory range for scene length. Discourage planning, unless it is done very slowly. Finally, bring the movie to an end. Whether it be the decorated tree, a pile of discarded wrappings, or a blissful child clutching a new toy, plan a shot which brings

1st U.M. WSCS Christmas Tea

The WSCS of the First United Methodist Church held a Christmas tea December 16.

The Philomel Chorus under the direction of Mrs. Arthur Lydell sang Christmas Carols. The Reverend David Morse brought a Christmas meditation and installed officers for the new year.

Akeley WSCS Christmas Party

The Akeley WSCS Christmas party was held at the home of Mrs. Robert Haley recently.

Mrs. Haley presided at the business meeting and introduced new members, including Mrs. Douglas Angove, Mrs. Leslie Trumbull and Mrs. Herbert Shures.

A discussion was held on the Prayer and Self Denial Meeting which is to be held Jan. 25, with Ida Grace Larson in charge.

Miss Larson read "My Christmas Miracle," from the Guide Post. Mrs. William Hunt played carols and from the program book, "The Leap of Faith," was given with Mrs. Harold McElhatten, Mrs. John Putnam, Mrs. Jack Haney, Mrs. Ruth Randall, Mrs. Leland Haller, Mrs. Haley, and Mrs. John Squires taking part.

A gift exchange was held and refreshments served by the hostess. Following the meeting, favors were made for the Ruth M. Smith Home.

Tied Up With The Holiday Rush? You'll Still Have Time To Make These Breads

Fragrant, festive breads are as traditional as the Christmas tree. And, you'll probably agree, about as time-consuming.

Here are three yule-tide breads in tune with today. Each features a built-in short cut to simplify your baking spree.

Holiday Candy Cane Bread, for example, starts with refrigerated crescent roll dough. This ready-to-use dough is first shaped into a large rectangle then topped with a sugar and spice mixture of candied fruit and nuts.

The dough is then cut in strips and overlapped atop the filling to give a braided look. For the finishing touch, brush the pastry with beaten egg and top with cherries -- the results are golden!

Cranberry Orange Twists are easy-to flaky pastries that will make any coffee event memorable. There's no measuring, no mixing, no kneading involved in making this dough. The short cut -- refrigerated orange Danish rolls.

The rolls are unwound into long strips, twisted and coiled. Then, top with a sprinkling of sugar and cranberry orange relish and bake. Before serving drizzle with the packaged icing.

You'll find Choco-Nut Crescent Ring is one of the best breads you've ever tasted. Once again preparation is shortened by starting with refrigerated crescent rolls to form the flaky sunburst pastry. And, you're guaranteed to like the surprise tucked inside -- rich, melted chocolate sparked with almonds, sugar and spice. For the final look, top with perky chocolate curls and sliced almonds.

HOLIDAY CANDY CANE BREAD

1 1/2 cup chopped candied fruit
1/4 cup chopped pecans
1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar

1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1 can (8 oz.) refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
1 egg, slightly beaten
Maraschino cherries or whole pecans

In small mixing bowl, combine fruit, pecans, brown sugar and cinnamon; set aside. On cookie sheet, separate crescent dough into 2 large rectangles. Overlap long sides; firmly pressing edges and perforations to seal. Pat or roll out to form a 7x14-inch rectangle. Spoon fruit mixture down center third of rectangle. On each side of rectangle, make cuts 1-inch apart to edge of filling. Fold opposite strips of dough over filling to form a braided appearance. Press edges of strips under to seal; seal ends. Shape braid into a candy cane shape. Brush with egg and decorate with cherries or pecans. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes until golden brown. Drizzle with powdered sugar glaze, if desired.

CRANBERRY ORANGE TWISTS

1 can (11 oz.) refrigerated orange Danish rolls with icing
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup cranberry-orange relish

Separate dough into 8 rolls. Unwind each; coat with sugar. Twist and form into a coil on ungreased cookie sheet. Spoon 1 1/2 teaspoons cranberry-orange relish on each roll. Bake at 400 degrees for 8 to 12 minutes until golden brown. Drizzle with orange icing which has been thinned with about 1 teaspoon warm water. Serve warm.

CHOCO-NUT CRESCENT RING

1/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1 can (8 oz.) refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
1/3 cup sliced almonds
2 milk chocolate candy bars

HOLIDAY BREADS TO PLEASE YOUR FAMILY made the easy way with refrigerated dough

(13% oz. broken into 12 squares each)
1 egg white, slightly beaten
Combine sugar and cinnamon; set aside. Separate crescent dough into 8 triangles. Brush with melted butter; sprinkle about 3 tablespoons sugar mixture and half of the almonds over dough. Stack three squares of chocolate on shortest side of triangle. Roll up; starting at shortest side of triangle and roll to opposite point; curve to crescent shape; press ends to seal. In center of ungreased cookie sheet, shape one crescent into a circle. Place

Stock Market Prices Climb After Seesawing All Day

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices climbed Tuesday after seesawing all day. Trading was heavy.

The closing Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 3.31 to 888.32. At one time the Dow average had slipped more than 3 1/2 points. The Dow has chalked up some 90 points since Thanksgiving.

Analysts noted that profit-taking hit the market in spots but said it was an encouraging sign that the market was able to absorb it so easily.

In the news background, it was reported that new durable goods orders rose 3.6 per cent in November and that mutual fund sales exceeded redemptions last month.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks gained .14 to 56.16.

Big Board volume was 20.46 million shares compared with 23.81 million shares Monday. There were 752 advances and 689 declines out of 1,756 issues traded on the Big Board.

The Associated Press 60 stock average advanced .3 to 321.7, with industrials up 1.3, rails unchanged, and utilities off .2.

There were 123 big blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded on the New York Stock Exchange versus 149 Monday. The biggest was 300,900 shares at Airco at 20, up 1/4.

Oils and farm implements were off. Motors and chemicals were up. All other stock categories were mixed.

Dragons Take 2nd

Warren, under extreme pressure in the final two minutes of play, remained calm, cool and collected and infuriated Corry to no end in the Section II lid-lifter for the visiting Dragon unit. So calm was Warren that it walked away from a one-point lead at 3:57 in the final quarter—46-45—and proceeded to detrude Corry, 61-54.

Defeat was uncommon for Corry, and it showed so in the final ticking minutes of the game. The Beavers pressed so hard and clumsily they committed eight fouls from the 1:54 in the game to the buzzer.

Warren tried to play ball control; Corry wouldn't hear of it. Hacking, deliberately fouling and slapping wrists, the Beavers lost their poise and Warren benefitted.

The last nine shots the Dragons poured through the hoop were on foul shots. Corry's loss of the game actually can be attributed to its violations of the rules. Look at the difference in the foul shots made between the two clubs, an 11-point difference.

It was a satisfying victory for Ed McGlumphy, his second in five games. And it also indicates to him the Dragons can win on the road. Road trips were a nemesis that plagued them over the past half-decade. Warren has not won in Corry since the 1965-66 season.

Entering the holiday break, Warren is sitting in second place in Section II with Meadville on a 1-0 record. The Dragons now trail Cranberry and Oil City with 2-0 marks.

"Basically, the kids worked hard. A real team effort," said McGlumphy upon his return home, "the scoring indicates that," he continued.

Starting Steve Harper out front as playmaker, Mike Piehuta and Rob Young on the wings and Dan Zdarko and Jim Bowen on the pivots, McGlumphy said that he gave his club more balance.

No sooner did he hit the court and Corry slapped a zone trap press and reverted into a man-to-man from the ten-second line, in a defense that Corry stayed in all night.

At first, Warren moved the ball out of the press and into scoring range, finding it fairly easy to score. Meanwhile, the Dragons were keeping Corry's center 6-2 Jim Dolan from underneath with a 3-2 zone and had continued success when switching into a 3-2 later.

The Dragons were out by a ten-point lead in the first period with balanced scoring. Waging a give-and-take battle throughout the ensuing period, Warren lost out and Corry erased half the lead.

Warren was losing under the boards, but Corry was losing the ball. Both stats indicated so in the end. The visitors were out-rebounded, 34-27, while Corry lost the ball on turnovers 20 times, 5 more than its guests.

In their ball control game, Warren shot just 40 times, making 19 for 47 per cent, while Corry, more or less a run-and-shoot club, hit on 21 of 69 for 30 per cent.

The game continued to see-saw through the third period, with Warren holding its own and the lead. However, Corry threatened to undo that in the fourth period when it came to within one point. One point was like a thousand for Corry in the attempt to rattle Warren and snatch the ball away at any cost. This is where they gave the game away at the free stripe.

When McGlumphy spoke of balanced scoring, he meant the 18 points of Bowen, 16 by Piehuta and 12 by Zdarko. Bowen was also the leading rebounder with 11 sweeps, while Piehuta whisked nine.

The Warren jayvees lost, 52-46. The boxscore was unavailable for publication.

FLIP-FLOP

Tim Johnson of Kane tries to flip Eagle match on a 7-1 decision. Youngsville downed the grappler Scott Grady onto his back and into a possible pinning situation in the 112 match last night. ## Six Consecutive Wins Notch Eagles' Match

By TOM SCHULTZ

On the strength of six straight wins, four on pins, the Youngsville Eagles rallied from a 16-0 deficit to record a 33-24 verdict over visiting Kane on the wrestling mats Tuesday evening.

With the Eagles on top by nine, 27-18, the 180-lb. clash became the pivotal match as a decision or pin by Kane's grappler would have left the door open for the Wolves to grab the meet victory in the heavyweight bout.

Youngsville's Bob Frazier took care of that, however, as he built up a 9-0 lead after two periods, then pinned his opponent, Tom Gustafson, 53 seconds into the final two minutes of wrestling. Gustafson was guilty of locking his hands twice in the middle period, giving Frazier two free points. The Eagle almost got his pin in the second period, but the buzzer sounded as Frazier was attempting to press Gustafson's shoulders to the mat.

Kane's Rob Knapp literally tore Chuck Dean apart in the 95-lb. match, permitting just six points, while chalking up 17 for himself. A big ten-point third period gave Knapp the ten point margin needed to record a 4-0 team score.

Barry Johnson of the Wolves blanked Paul Sanford in the 103 match-up, picking up four first period points and three more in the second stanza on an escape and a double leg takedown for a 7-0 decision.

Tim Johnson carried the action to the Eagles' Scott Grady at 112 lbs. To record a 7-1 verdict, Johnson charged his opponent consistently, going for takedowns and pins while Grady seemed content to wrestle defensively throughout the match. Kane then received six points for the 120 match when Youngsville's Al Henry failed to make weight and the Wolves were on top 16-0.

Joe Morrison, at 127, was trailing 6-5 going into the final period, then battled Guy Anderson through a scoreless two minutes. But Morrison was awarded a point for riding time and the match was a draw, 6-6, as Youngsville got its first two points.

The Eagles then began to control the match. Mike Chase slipped the cradle on Fred Kelly at 3:36 of the 133-lb. bout and gave the Youngsville Eagles six points. Albert Moon couldn't quite manage a pin, so settled for a 12-2 decision, worth four points.

Alan Kuzminski tied the match at 18-18 when Mickey Hannah fell into the Eagle's grasp and was pinned in the 145-lb. match. Youngsville moved into the lead in the next bout as Lanny Williams controlled Mike Pearson and picked up a narrow 8-6 decision.

The Eagles' Brad Chapman, holding a 4-1 lead after the first period, slammed Carl Stenberg to the mat midway through the second stanza for the pin and setting the stage for Frazier. Pat Imbrogno wrapped up the evening's scoring by pinning Bill VanGuilder of Youngsville at the 3:30 mark to bring the final score to 33-24.

Youngsville will be hosting the Eagles Holiday Tournament Dec. 29 which features Clarion, N. Clarion and Saegertown.

A late Eagle comeback in the junior varsity match fell just short as Youngsville dropped a 30-24 decision to the Kane jayvees.

Tidioute Spanked By Bradford CC

Turnovers infrequent rebounds, a 16-point second half and a low shooting percentage contributed to Tidioute's slide to its sixth consecutive loss Tuesday evening as the Bradford Central Christian Ramblers took a 69-32 decision. The Bulldogs connected on only 12 of 59 shots from the floor — which averages out to just above 20 per cent. From the foul line Tidioute's luck wasn't much better as only eight of 28 fell through.

The Ramblers forced the 'Dogs to turn the ball over 31 times during the course of the game, 21 on steals. Bradford held a commandary 69-27 edge on the boards.

Bradford CC, which held a 40-16 halftime lead behind the shooting of Mike Walters and Mike Alviti, scored 33 points in the third frame to put the game well away. Walters and Alviti each pumped in 14 points for the night with Mark Smith close behind with 13.

While the Bulldogs were cold from the floor, the Ramblers set the nets on fire, making better than 50 per cent of their attempts, 40 of 70.

For Tidioute, John McGraw and Ted Terwilliger were the only players to hit double figures, McGraw banging in 14 to tie for game honors and Terwilliger canning 11.

The Junior Bulldogs made a run at Bradford CC's junior varsity, but fell 54-45.

Tidioute, now 1-6 is idle through the holidays, returning to action Jan. 4 when Jamestown, Pa., comes to town.

Baltimore Now Worried About Integrity; Two Days Too Late

NEW YORK (AP) — The Baltimore Colts issued an official statement Tuesday defending their integrity and revealing that their upset defeat by New England cost many players and coaches bonuses promised if the club had won the Eastern Division title in the American Football Conference.

Citing stories suggesting the Colts may have lost to the Patriots because they preferred to meet Cleveland rather than Kansas City in a first-round playoff game, General Manager Don Klosterman issued a statement which said:

"The idea that the world champions would give less than a full effort in order to gain a supposed advantage in playoff competition is repugnant to everyone associated with the Colts, a team widely known as one of character.

"The world champions' loss was a serious one in that it cost them a possible home field advantage in the AFC championship game and the Colts never have lost a playoff or championship in Baltimore. In addition, it prevented numerous Colt players and coaches from receiving bonus payments which had been promised them contractually if Baltimore had won the Eastern Division title."

Klosterman pointed out that much time had been lost preparing for post-season action since the club already had started work on a game plan that would have been used against the Chiefs.

"In general, the Colts suffered many disadvantages, as the result of the loss to the Patriots," the statement said. "Coach Don McCafferty summed up the feelings of the Colts when he said: 'I don't want to lose to anybody anytime.'"

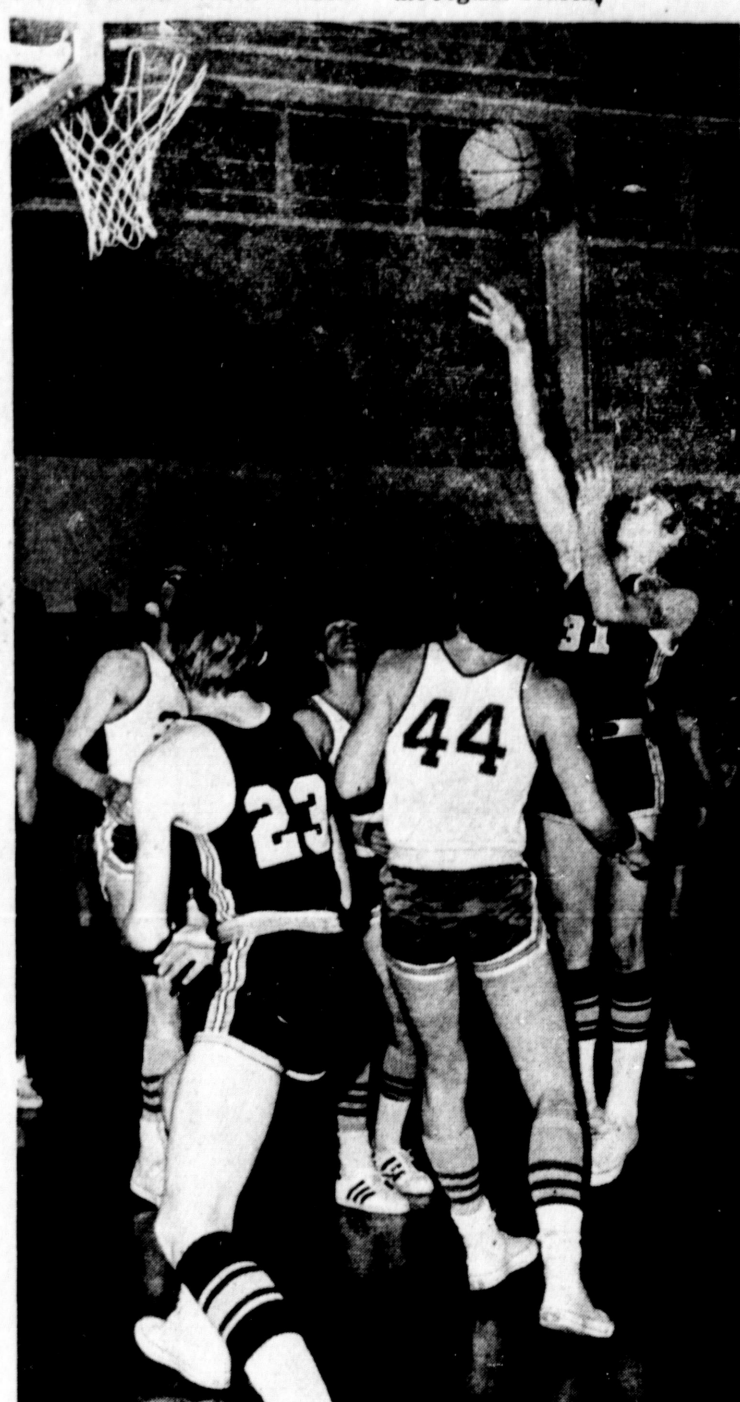

Klosterman's statement said stories suggesting otherwise had permitted the "integrity of the Colts and of pro football in general to be questioned through innuendo and distortion," that they did a disservice to the Patriots and belittled the Browns.

The situation involving the Colts arose from the National Football League playoff set-up in which the three division titlists plus the second-place team with the best record in the conference qualifies for post-season play.

Baltimore headed into the final week of the regular season leading AFC East, one-half game ahead of Miami. In the first-round of the playoffs, the Eastern winner is scheduled to meet Western winner Kansas City, 10-3-1, and the runner-up goes against Central winner Cleveland, 9-5.

The Colts fell into the runner-up spot when they lost to the Patriots 21-17 on the last day of the regular season,

Browns Have Problems

CLEVELAND (AP) — Veteran linebacker Jim Houston looms larger and larger as a key factor for the Cleveland Browns in Sunday's American Football Conference playoff game here with the Baltimore Colts.

Houston, at 34 years old and one of the oldest members of the Central Division champion Browns, will start at middle linebacker if Dale Lindsey is still bothered by a knee injury.

"It feels fine," Lindsey said Tuesday about the injury that has bothered him most of the season and kept him out of the last three games. He said the decision on his playing status would be made by the coaches later in the week. But he said, "I'm planning on playing."

The middle linebacking post has been a major concern to the Browns for several seasons. Houston was put in the middle last year because coaches felt Lindsey was too small for the position, but Houston had trouble adjusting to the change. He had been working at the outside linebacking position.

Lindsey regained the starting job this year but Houston was pressed into service again after Lindsey was injured and after John Garlington had ousted him from his outside linebacking spot.

Houston is one of only a couple of possible substitute starters for a Browns team in basically sound condition.

Vikings Freezing

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings and Dallas Cowboys can relax a bit about what kind of weather is in store for their National Football Conference playoff game Saturday.

Traditionally, Minnesotans are blessed with what they think is exceptional Christmas Day weather.

The average high down through the years is 25 degrees. The average low temperature is 6 degrees. The record high, 51, was set in 1922 and the record low, minus 20, was established in 1962.

Average precipitation is a mere .02 of an inch.

However, Coach Bud Grant of the Vikings thinks too much fuss is made about cold weather football games.

"I don't think the weather, when it's down to 20 or 30 degrees, bothers football players at all," said Grant.

Grant believes cold is a state of mind. That's why the Vikings forsake bench heaters, mittens, electric socks, handwarmers and other devices.

All that's under their purple and white uniforms, besides pads and other protection, is long underwear.

"When the temperature gets down to the teens or less and you get some wind," Grant said, "you start worrying about staying warm. And you spend more time worrying about getting warm than you do concentrating on the game."

The Vikings, ever since harsh winter days set in, have made it a point to hold at least part of their practices outside.

"It's not surprising that you can play football when it's cold," said Grant. "Football players are used to the cold."

The Vikings were defeated 17-14 by the San Francisco 49ers in an NFC semifinal playoff game last December at Metropolitan Stadium in temperatures that ranged from 14 to 17 degrees.

"It was a balmy day," said Grant.

The field was in excellent playing condition.

The Met Stadium groundskeepers again have kept the field covered since the last home game, a 29-10 victory against Detroit Dec. 11, with an insulated pad and a tarpaulin. In addition, huge fans are used to blast hot air under the covering.

Cowboys Frustrated

DALLAS (AP) — Calvin Hill is disappointed and frustrated. The combination could mean double trouble for the Minnesota Vikings when the Cowboys play them Christmas Day. Hill, a former National Football League rookie-of-the-year from Yale, has been injured-plagued for three years.

He missed the last part of his rookie season which cost him a 1,000 yards rushing mark. Last year, he was injured and by the time he regained his health an unknown, Duane Thomas, had taken his job. This year Hill has been outstanding when he's in the lineup but has logged only enough quarters to equal six games.

"I'm very frustrated because I set some goals up for myself this year and I don't feel like I've reached any of them," says Hill.

Hill was knocked out of the game again Saturday against St. Louis and played barely two quarters before he was lifted. He is expected to be ready for Minnesota.

"I sorta got my bell rung when I was along the sidelines just before the half," he says. "I guess I was leaping again. In the third quarter, I had a lot of trouble concentrating. Everything was fuzzy."

When Hill is in the game at running back and Thomas is at fullback, the Cowboys present a devastating duo. The Vikings also will be confronted with stopping scrambling quarterback Roger Staubach.

NEW YORK — Well, the coach said, "it took us prettinear all season but we finally put it all together and for once we got a few bounces so maybe somebody out there thinks we must be doing something right, after all. It was a team effort. It shows what we can do when we have the horses healthy and let's hope this is only the beginning."

"The quarterback's not too fast and maybe he has got the strongest arm in the league but he comes to play. One thing, he can really pick those defenses apart. He knows where it's at. They were keying on the guards, so at half-time we made a few adjustments and in the second half we put it all together like you saw."

"As for those missed kicks, well, that was just one of those things. That's the way the cookie crumbles. You know, the ball takes some funny bounces in this game. I'd have to say that kicker of ours is the gutsiest little guy I ever had. He's played hurt all year and the way he hung in there showed me plenty. It gives me a good kind of inside feeling, and it really means something to a team."

"That pass interference call? I'd have to see the movies but you're not going to get me to say anything about the officials. Those guys in the striped shirts have a tough job and it's easy to second-guess."

"I admit we didn't look too good at the start of the season but at the same time I definitely think it's bad to peak too early. It's a long season and you don't want to run out of gas emotionally. Sometimes if you just hang in there and keep hitting, everything seems to drop in for you."

"As far as this game today, I'd have to say it was the biggest victory I've ever had. The whole ball of wax was wrapped up in that one. I told the kids after the game they had done a great all-round job. I told them I was proud of the way they hung in there tough and overcame adversity."

"Next week, well, let's face it, it's not just another game, it's the whole ball of wax. This is a must game for the both of us. The team that wants it most is the team that's going to win, just like I think maybe we wanted today's game a little more than the other people."

"We're just going out there and try to play our game, try to let them make the mistakes. After all, the name of the game is defense. Sure, the other people are tough to defense but they still put their pants on one leg at a time."

"In this league they can all get the job done. It's just a question of who executes best."

"That wide receiver of theirs, he's got all the moves along with great hands and he can juke you. You just have to not give him any daylight and play him nose to nose. Their fullback can be pretty hard-nosed by we've been defending against the rush all year, that's where we live."

"That No. 42 of theirs, he's having a super season. He's not the fastest back in the league but he's strong and quick, got the fastest second step in the league. Get him mad, and he'll reach back for that little extra that can beat you. He's what makes them go."

"No, I haven't talked to Joe and I don't know what he's been saying because I don't read the papers. I'll tell you this, if he wasn't teed off about not playing I wouldn't want him on my club. The guys on this club come to play, or they don't stand around."

"I've been too busy to talk to the owner. One of these days we'll sit down and talk if it was security I was after I wouldn't be in this game. I don't need a two-or-three-year contract. All we ever had, the owner and myself, was a handshake. I'm not thinking about next year. I'm just thinking about next Sunday and going out there on that field and hitting 'em. That's the name of the game, hitting people."

Ssshhh!

Psst!
Do you wanna know a secret?
Now this is just between me and about 45,000 of you. So don't spread it around.

Well-informed sources have let me privy to some shaking information on the athletic front. Something that should come out in the near future officially, but won't now because plans are still being incubated.

Up on the fourth floor of that three-cornered building on Second ave., which I like to refer to as the Pentagon of the school district, private conferences have been taking place recently.

No, coaches, don't worry, it's not one of your jobs this time.
This is bigger than that.

I feel like columnist Jack Anderson revealing a top-secret government scheme.

After a seven-paragraph lead-in, it's about time I got down to facts. This is the secret:

There's going to be a complete overhaul in league play for all schools in the county with the exception of Warren.

That's right. Every athletic team in football, basketball, track, and wrestling will be breaking old ties before the start of the 1974 school year. By this time, administrators feel that Sheffield should be well on its way toward a new high school and in the same student enrollment range as Eisenhower and Youngsville.
Where's that leave Tidoute?
I'm glad you asked.
Presumably, Tidoute students will be attending Youngsville High by this time. That's unofficially the plan at this time.

What's the idea of such a total withdrawal from all leagues?
Well, the school district, reportedly, is engaged with Johnsburg, Ridgway and Kane in negotiations to form a six-team league for all sports.
This may even include a baseball schedule.

Johnsburg doesn't have wrestling at the present time,
but it's considering the idea,
and if it is to enter the league, which incidentally may carry the name of Kinzua Valley Conference, it will be almost compelled to initiate the sport in its curriculum.

This means that Eisenhower, Tidoute, and Youngsville would dissolve playing agreements with the Upper Allegheny Valley League in basketball, while Sheffield would do so in the Allegheny Mountain

Beaty Rough On Defense

Beaty must have been tenacious yesterday afternoon with its man-to-man in the first period, for Corry's Beavers didn't score a point in that stanza and scored just 19 in the entire game in a 47-19 pasting on the Baby Dragons' home court.

With Scott McDonald and Tom Pellegrino sweeping the boards with 12 apiece, Don Olson was leading the fast break against the bewildered Beavers, scoring most of his game-high 12 points. Other contributing factors to Beaty were Tom Gay and Kevin Fischer with eight apiece.

Scoring just five points in the entire first half, Corry was given a fair shake in the second half when Beaty mitigated its defense and swung into a zone.

The Blue and Gold will now take the holiday break offered and return to the hardwood on January 4th in Cranberry.

Eagles Extend Invitation To Venango Christian Five

In a rare Wednesday night basketball game, the Youngsville Eagles entertain Venango Christian as both teams go into the Christmas break and prepare for holiday tournaments.

The Eagles are still looking for their second victory, after dropping an exciting 88-75 decision to Sheffield Friday night for their third straight defeat and fifth of the season.

Another fine performance was turned in by Mike Shine, who dumped in 19 points and latched onto numerous stray

McLaughlin Back

Harry McLaughlin, who quit
the Gannon College Basketball team earlier this year, will be back on the team as of December 18th.

The 6-4 Gannon star has solved his personal problems and feels he will be able to help the team once again.

Coach Markey and the rest of the squad are glad to have him back, especially since he will help solve the problem of lack of depth on the bench.

It will most definitely take Harry two or three weeks to get back into the swing of things.

shots. Once again the Eagles got a total team effort, as all the other four starters—Pat Gibson, Denny Howe, Gary Benjamin and Bob Jones—all tallied in double figures.

Coach Bob Kolesar indicated that he will go with the same five as his starting line-up against Venango Christian.

With 77 points in five games, senior forward Tom O'Connor will be leading the Venango Christian attack along with Bob Rogers, who has hit for 74 points in six contests.

Venango Christian currently carries a 3-3 mark, including a 53-39 verdict over Townville Friday. Victories have also been recorded over Saegertown and St. Marys, while Cranberry, Clarion and Erie East have won decisions.

O'Connor, along with Jim Caffery are two of the three seniors on the squad and both hold down starting spots.
Caffery is averaging around nine points per contest and is usually assigned to guard the other team's best scorer.

Tom Etzel will be in the middle of the Venango Christian offense with Jay Serafin at one forward with O'Connor and Caffery and Bob Rogers out front. Etzel, at six foot, is the tallest starter, which implies that the team is weak on the boards and will shoot a lot from the outside, due to the lack of height to work inside.

After tonight's game,
Youngsville will compete in the St. Mary's tournament Dec. 27 and 28 and Venango Christian will play in the Warren Holiday Tournament the same days.

Nudged Out

Randy Knuth, scoring 12 of his 16 points in the final eight minutes, directed a 20-point fourth quarter and a Saegertown Panther five to a 67-65
decision over West Forest.
Going into the final period, the Panthers were down by 11.

Jeff Falconer and Tim Rogers were high for West Forest with 16 each.

Momentum In Favor Of Kansas City's Chiefs

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs will have a lot going for them Saturday
when they battle the Miami Dolphins in an American Football Conference playoff game.

They've got momentum at home for one thing. The Chiefs haven't been defeated at Municipal Stadium all year. That includes exhibition games. The closest anyone came was the 17-17 tie by the St. Louis Cardinals in the last of the pre-season clashes.

Miami has never been able to beat Kansas City or even play to a stalemate against the Chiefs in seven meetings.

The Chiefs will be in top physical condition. Quarterback Len Dawson has recovered from an ankle injury and is expected to be at full strength. He limited his action in last Sunday's 22-9 victory over Buffalo only to holding the ball for Jan Stenerud's kicks.
Guard Mo Moorman and center
Jack Rudny, who did not play against Buffalo, will be ready as will tight end Morris Stroud, who saw only brief action against the Bills.

Still, Chiefs Coach Hank
Stram speaks cautiously about Miami. After looking at the film of the Miami-Baltimore game of Dec. 12, Stram said Tuesday that the Dolphins' offense is "extremely well balanced. Bob Griese has done an excellent job of directing their attack. He's the type of quarterback who can put pressure on the defense with his ability to run.

"With Jim Kiick and Larry Csonka, the Dolphins possess as good a set of running backs as there are in the game. Both are big, strong, tough runners who can go inside as well as outside.
The Dolphins are an explosive football team.

"On defense, Miami is a sound and aggressive unit with exceptional quickness and pursuit. It should be a great contest."

Stram also is quite aware of the fact that the Dolphins carved the same regular season record as the Chiefs, 10 victories, three defeats and a tie.

Three of the Chiefs' victories came over teams in this weekend's playoffs, Washington,
Cleveland and San Francisco.
The Dolphins played only one playoff game, Baltimore, splitting two games with the Colts.

Big 10 Presses UCLA For Lead

UCLA, continuing to show its awesome strength, remains the No. 1 college basketball team in the nation but the Big Ten is starting to flex its muscles.

The unbeaten Bruins drew 34 of 43 first-place votes in the nationwide balloting of sports writers and broadcasters for a commanding lead over Marquette, ranked second.

UCLA collected 842 points to 754 for the Warriors in the weekly poll by The Associated Press. Marquette drew eight firsts and South Carolina was given one.

But Big Ten powers Ohio
State and Indiana made giant strides and made it to the Nos. 6 and 8 spots, respectively.

Ohio State jumped from the 10th spot with a victory over Butler last week while Indiana leaped four places although it dropped a 79-70 decision to Ohio University before crushing
Notre Dame 94-29 last Saturday.

South Carolina and North Carolina remained in the No. 3 and 4 spots while Southern California was fifth, up from 11th
the previous week.

Brigham Young slipped one spot to seventh and Long Beach State crept to ninth from 13th the week before. St. John's

N.Y., dipped to No. 10, a drop of two places.

Falling from the Top 10 were Penn. from fifth to 13th; Kentucky, from seventh to 11th; and Florida State, from ninth to 14th.

The rest of the Top 20 includes: 12, Southwest Louisiana; 15, Maryland; 16, Jacksonville; 17, Ohio University; 18,
Virginia; 19, Louisville and 20, Marshall.

3NT      Pass      Pass      Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♣ Lead control was the key factor in South's campaign to land nine tricks in no trump. Had he faltered in the slightest at any point, it would have presented the defense with an opportunity to cash the setting trick before he could take charge.

West opened the five of hearts and the queen was played from dummy which held the trick, as East signaled with the nine as a mild encouragement. Declarer could count seven top tricks—four diamonds and one in each of the other suits. Spades offered the best prospect for developing two more.

The problem was to keep East out of the lead, for if the latter ever got in, a return thru the king of hearts would enable West to cash out in that suit. If he started with five hearts, the defense would take four hearts and one spade to defeat the contract.

South entered his hand by leading a small diamond to the jack. A spade was led and when West followed with the three, the queen was played from dummy. When this held, declarer became assured of eight tricks.

He reentered his hand with the king of diamonds. Now another spade was led. West played the eight and North went up with the ace and returned the suit. When both the jack and king appeared on the third lead, dummy's ten became established for the fulfilling trick. West was in and shifted to a club. The ace was put up and the ten of spades and the ace and queen of diamonds were cashed after which South cheerfully conceded the balance to the opponents.

Observe that West cannot gain by putting up the king of spades when that suit is led from the closed hand, because declarer can permit his opponent to hold the trick and North's ace and queen subsequently drop East's jack.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars

FOR WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1971

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Tangible gains indicated if you handle responsibilities without unnecessary interruptions. Don't neglect the substantial for "flashy" but momentary gain, however. Think of the future.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Profit by past mistakes and by sound advice. You have a wonderful chance for accomplishment now but day needs the right push, steadiness.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Important now: Common sense, logical analysis, ease of action. Regular business and work matters highly favored. Don't waste time on regrets.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Without much planetary assistance, you can still net top returns now but, before acting, plan well, be sure of facts and details and DON'T put things off until the last minute.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Counting one's blessings makes every picture rosier, but DON'T count returns you have not and MAY NOT receive. Mixed influences; use care in all things.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—An auspicious day for business ventures. This is a period in which to give your finest performance, to capitalize on your gift of good management.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—This is a day for aggressive action. Aim for your goals in a swift, sure manner. On the personal side: Romance highly favored.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—Day may not seem to hold much opportunity at first, but if you will look closely, you will find it has many advantages. Results will be largely up to YOU.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Give of your best to those who have proven worthy in the past, but do not waste your time or generosity on schemers or chiselers. Be alert to the motives of all.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Through keen observation and clever management of your affairs you can achieve top rewards now. There's more than one way to hurdle obstacles.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—You may be asked to do more than usual, to assist someone even though your own duties are numerous. Where you can put forth that extra effort; it will pay off.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Keep at whatever you are doing since you seem to be close to whatever you wish to achieve. Your intuition can be of great help now.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a high order of intelligence; are studious and ambitious. Your goals in life are usually lofty ones and you generally attain them in out-of-the-ordinary fashion. You are extremely methodical and, when instructions are given to you, you carry them out to the letter. Your integrity and trustworthiness are outstanding. # How to Keep Well

MEDICAL BROWSING

A new "cure" for nasal colds makes as much sense as many other weird remedies touted during the last few decades. Two Israeli researchers reported that sudden chilling of the big toes with a chemical refrigerant dries up the nostrils and "cures" a nose cold. According to these physicians, chilling the toes lowers the temperature within the nose. To my knowledge, putting an ice bag on the nose or inhaling cold air never cured a nasal cold and the measures are easier to do than chilling the big toes.

Of all the ways a person can commit suicide, one of the most unusual and difficult to prove is death by parachuting. Every year there are approximately 35 deaths from this type of accident. The mishap is attributed mainly to malfunctioning equipment, errors in judgment, and inexperience. But there is evidence that one or two of these fatalities may have been deliberate. The victim fails to pull the ripcord or pulls it too late—on purpose, or because he was intoxicated.

According to a report in Psychology Today, the time-honored notion that sports build character is erroneous. California psychologists, Bruce C. Ogilvie and Thomas A. Tutko, came to this conclusion after studying 15,000 athletes on 27 pro teams and hundreds of high school and college teams. Any character these men have was there before they became sports minded. The authors also presented evidence that competitive sports participation may limit emotional growth in some areas.

A new type of filling material that matches the color of the teeth is under investigation at the Emory University School of Dentistry. It is made of 78 per cent quartz. According to Dr. Wilmer B. Evans, professor of operative dentistry, several more years of testing will be needed before final judgment as to its value is made.

TOMORROW: Pancreatitis.
Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

RINGWORM REMEDY

Mrs. T. T. writes: My son had ringworm of the hand and both feet for four years. The ringworm pills cleared up the condition, but unless he continues them, the ringworm recurs. His doctor tests his blood periodically and it is always OK. However, I wonder if there is any danger in continuing the medicine.

REPLY

Not so long as he is under the watchful eye of his physician, who has made tests proving the diagnosis. The tests are done to make certain that griseofulvin is not destroying the blood cells. Your son may be stopping the drug before all the fungi are destroyed. Some physicians supplement griseofulvin with antifungal salves and powders.

SHORT EYELASHES

Miss E. writes: Is there any way to encourage short, stubby eyelashes to grow?

REPLY

I don't know of any way to make lashes grow. However, you could wear falsies.

LIPSTICK SCARE

Mrs. C.A. writes: Do all brands of lipstick cause cancer?

REPLY

None do. Certain dyes in lipstick are said to cause cancer in mice and rats but not in humans. To my knowledge, these no longer are on the market.

Pittsburgh Wars On Rats; Can't Eliminate Problem

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An all-out war on rats, launched here three years ago by health authorities, apparently is paying off. But the problem is far from solved, they say.

About 25 per cent of Allegheny County, mostly the heavily populated area of Pittsburgh, still has an acute rat problem which the authorities say they can only hope to control — not eliminate.

"The problem we have here in the county is common to all urban centers," said Albert H. Brunwasser, deputy director of the Allegheny County Health Department's environmental health division.

"We find the problem in better neighborhoods as well as in areas that have dilapidated housing conditions.

"I'll take you anywhere in the county where people are living in close proximity and show you rats," he said.

"We do just about everything that will help resolve this problem," explained Edward McCloskey, director of the rodent control division, "it's a rather innovative thing, as we're not following the classical rodent control programs."

McCloskey said rodent control programs and environmental upgrading have made their way into Pittsburgh schools, and, he said, the department hires persons from the relief rolls to work with authorities in reaching those people who have given up hope of controlling the rats and are resigned to a life that includes them.

Under federal and state grants, the health department has established a program to aid municipalities and run-down areas in the upgrading of their environment.

"The total focus of this operation is to make the environment better for the people, and make it less desirable for the rats," Brunwasser explained.

The health department dispatches inspectors who alert landlords and tenants to health violations that might attract or sustain rats. If the landlords don't correct the violations they are taken to court and forced to do so, according to McCloskey.

A recent survey by a public health service evaluation team showed that four areas reduced infestation from 15 per cent to near zero in one year, and another area involved in the department's programs showed a reduction from 11 per cent to two per cent during the same time, according to McCloskey.

One of the problems the rodent control programs face is getting people to report rat bites. McCloskey estimated that more than 20 rat bites are reported each year, but that figure, he said, does not reflect the seriousness of the situation.

"Most people bitten by rats accept it as a way of life and never report it," he said.

"One thing to keep in mind," Brunwasser said, "is that when a rat is seen in the daytime, you can bet there are at least 200 more crawling around somewhere nearby, because only the weaker rats attempt to feed in daylight hours, as rats are nocturnal."

"When we first began these programs, rats were the number one priority of those people most affected," said McCloskey, "but now, in many areas, other things have taken over as their principal concerns."

"I think the expansion of these programs is an indication of their success," he declared, "and as we obtain more funding we'll continue to expand until we are able to focus programs in all areas of the county."

Sheriff's Force Arrests Three

The Warren County Sheriff's department has recorded three recent arrests.

A bench warrant was issued for the arrest of Donald G. Reynolds, 45, Conewango ave., Warren, for non-payment of court costs.

Deputy Sheriff Douglas Irvine is currently investigating an incident of vandalism reported during which $20 damage was caused at a pump house when the lock was broken and someone shot into the building.

Cabot Man Is Held For Shooting Wife

BUTLER, Pa. (AP) — Butler County authorities were holding a man from nearby Cabot Tuesday in connection with the shooting death of his wife.

Alma M. Fitzsimmons, 45, was pronounced dead on arrival at the Butler County Hospital here Monday from a gunshot wound.

The husband, William J. Fitzsimmons, 46, was arrested a short time later and charged with murder. A hearing will be held Dec. 29.

No Charges Planned In Franklin Slaying

FRANKLIN — There will be no criminal charges filed in the slaying of an RD1, Kennerdell youth during a Thanksgiving Eve burglary attempt which occurred at Goetz Coal Co. on Rockland rd., Cranberry Township.

Venango County District Attorney Miles Lynn said he will adhere to the finding of a coroner's inquest held Monday into the fatal shooting which took the life of Jerome Reisinger, 17. The six-member jury ruled that the death was caused by "no criminal intent."

The shooting took place when Reisinger and two other young men, Robert Culbertson, 21, of RD1, Seneca and Raymond P. Lineman, 18, of RD1, Van, attempted to commit a burglary at Goetz Coal Co.

The three men had been staked out because of six other burglaries in the previous 20 days.

One of the things the inquest was unable to determine was who did the shooting. There was also considerable conflicting testimony on the circumstances surrounding the shooting.

Personnel from the Warren County Court House and their spouses took over Allegheny River Hotel Monday evening as about 87 turned out for a combination Christmas and farewell dinner party. Honored guests were County Commissioner Blain M. Mead and County Treasurer Florence Hoffman, who were both presented gifts. Thomas Donnelly made appropriate remarks with County Solicitor Bill Mervine handling the gift presentation. Mead has served 16 years as county commissioner.

In Erie, Democrats are promising a "new look" when they take over the courthouse next year, and the latest word is it will cost $24 a week. That's the going price for uniforms for the county's 24 custodians and security officers. It works out to $1,248 a year. According to incumbent Democratic Commissioner Bill Hill, the uniforms will make it easier to find custodians in emergencies, and enable visitors to the courthouse to more readily find their way around. Plans now call for light blue dresses for the women, light green shirts and dark green slacks for the janitors and light blue shirts and navy slacks for security officers.

Warren Dads of Foreign Service Veterans were saddened by the news of the death of their Past National Commander Clarence Miller at Lakewood Hospital in Lakewood, Ohio. He was also a summer resident of Tidouete.

Janet Cousin of Rockport and Robert A. Fredlund of Jamestown, N.Y. were married by Pastor Carl W. Gold last Saturday in Brockton, Mass. Hospital at the bedside of the bride's father, James T. Cousin. The couple chose the spot when the bride's father was confined to the hospital with pneumonia. The ceremony was repeated later at a nearby church.

It's too bad that Loranger Plastic Co. in Warren is somewhat off the beaten path. Its display of Christmas lights, artistically arranged, is a brilliant sight at night.

Special Rules For Blacks?

By Sylvia Porter

Should the official retirement age for blacks to become eligible for full Society Security-Medicare benefits be lowered from today's 65 to 58?

Should our present Social Security laws be amended to give sharp raises in benefits to black retirees, their widows and their dependents?

Don't sputter! Responsible leaders of the elderly blacks are seriously pressing for moves along these lines—and the issue of a lower Social Security eligibility age for blacks was submitted for debate at the recent White House Conference on Aging.

To my mind, anything even approaching this would be a step toward disaster, would open up hideous traps, would actually endanger our entire Social Security system—and would almost surely be condemned all illegal under our anti-discrimination laws.

Nevertheless, "The average black man doesn't live long enough to collect his Social Security," argued Dr. Inabel Lindsay, retired dean of the Howard University School of Social Work, at a meeting of elderly blacks in Washington last month. And Dr. Lindsay submitted some startling statistics:

+The mortality rate for black women in the pre-retirement 45-64 age bracket today is approximately twice the rate for white women and the rate is more than 10 per cent greater for black men approaching retirement age than for white men.

+The statistical life expectancy for black males today is 60.1 years against 67.5 years for white males. That means the Negro male is likely to be dead a full year before he even qualifies for reduced Social Security retirement benefits and four years before he qualifies for full retirement or for Medicare benefits. Dr. Lindsay's poignant remark has a sombre background indeed.

+As a result, of the statistics above, a black man may be required to pay his full share of Social Security-Medicare taxes throughout his working life, but then simply not live long enough to collect one cent of the benefits for which his taxes have paid.

According to a recent study by the Dept. of Health, Education & Welfare in Washington, only one in three aged blacks collects any benefits at all from the Medicare coverage for which he or she is fully eligible and for which they have paid a full share of taxes. And this is so despite the well-known fact that the blacks among us tend to suffer a far greater share of ill health than whites—particularly the elderly black whose health needs may have been almost totally neglected in earlier years.

Among those blacks who do survive to 65 and beyond, fully half live below the official poverty line of $1,852 for an individual and $2,328 for a couple.

One reason for this abysmally high poverty "risk" of course, is the black citizen's generally lower level of education, training and skills. A second is the still rampant discrimination in terms of jobs and pay.

A third, not so obvious explanation for today's poverty crisis among blacks is the fact that when our original Social Security law was passed during the 1930s, blacks were working primarily in two of the key occupations not covered by the law: domestic service and agriculture. It was not until nearly two decades later, that most black workers entered the system.

And a fourth reason why so many blacks receive either minimal or no Social Security benefits is their still pervasive attitude of mistrust toward the system. Many household workers continue to persuade their employers not to report or to pay Social Security taxes on their incomes—and many household employers continue shamefully cooperative in this tragic deception NOT of the government but of the household worker.

The answer to the acute problem of the poor elderly black is not preferential treatment—as Dr. Lindsay's call for special Social Security benefits implies. It's equal treatment. Maybe just these disclosures will help a bit.
